

CAER Receives EPA Award at DC Ceremony

The CAER received the first place award in the Communication and Outreach category for its new Coal Ash Education web site. The Coal Combustion Products Partnership (C2P2) program is a cooperative effort among the U.S. EPA, DOE, DOA, EPRI, ACAA , Federal Highway Administration, and Utility Solid Waste Activities Group to promote the use of coal by-products and the environmental benefits that result from their use.

The web site's funding came from the UK Commonwealth Collaborative Program. The program is the brainchild of UK President, Dr. Lee Todd. Individual projects are chosen for distinguished scholarship, leadership, and commitment to university engagement.
