

University of Kentucky Center for Applied Energy Research Power Generation Research Group

Wetted Wall Column

This wetted wall column is used for CO₂ mass transfer studies. The apparatus was constructed from a stainless steel tube, and is enclosed in a thick walled glass tube which forms an absorption/ desorption chamber. This assembly is contained in a heat bath for temperature control.

